Things are not okay.
And we can all feel it.

A looming tariff war. A crumbling safety net. And a political process that doesn't work for most of us.

But history has taught us that social change is possible.

Time and again, we've seen entrenched political forces fall apart in the face of sustained community action.

Let's turn our collective anxiety into something productive.

Let's come together on Feb. 21 and combat the feeling that we're on our own. Let's listen and care for one another, even as our systems fail us. And in the midst of so much noise, let's practise building our collective power to create the future we want.
